ITALIAN AMERICAN HERITAGE FOUNDATION NEWSLETTER • JULY / AUGUST 2012 • FOUNDED AUGUST 5, 1975 • CELEBRATING 36 YEARS

President's Message

by Ken Borelli

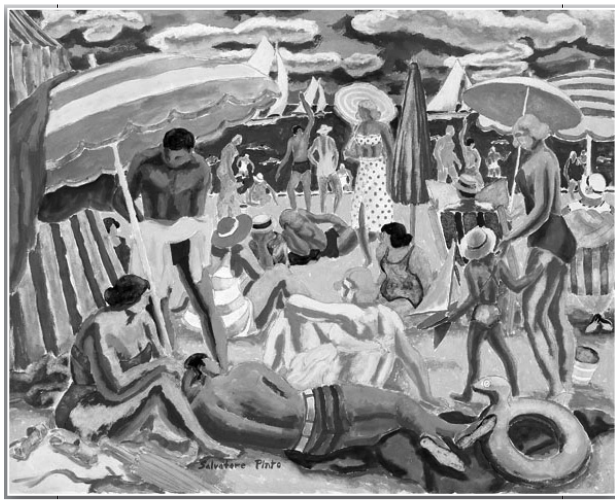

SEE YOU @ THE FESTA!

The time is fast approaching for our annual ITALIAN FAMILY FESTA, the last weekend in August, and in many ways we should consider it an "Italian Heritage Month". For it is the place to be for community wide time and place to celebrate our Italian Heritage. It is also a timely reminder that The Italian American Heritage Foundation is dedicated to calling attention to the rich and ongoing contributions of Italian Americans in the fabric of modern American life throughout the year. The importance of this observation hit home recently when I traveled to Washington DC, and then on to Philadelphia. Driving into the city of Philadelphia I was listening to a classical music station (they have two, we in San Jose have zero), and was listing to comments and eventually a selection from a recording by Conductor, JoAnn Falletta from the works of composer Romeo Cascarino. He was a self-taught Italian-American composer, seldom played these days, yet his seminal piece was the opera "William Penn", twenty years in the making. In further research about his roots in the Italian-American community of Philadelphia, it was quite a revelation to hear and appreciate the music of this great lyrical talent. CD's of his recordings are available on Amazon.com.

The purpose of the visit to Philadelphia was to visit the newly opened Barnes Museum, a must for any art lover, and houses the largest private collection of Impressionist paintings in the USA. It also introduced you to the philosophy and direction of the collection under the guidelines established by Dr. Albert and Laura Barnes. Amongst the famous artist, including a solid collection of Modigliani, and De Chirico, along with some works by a lesser known family of painters Salvatore, Angelo and Biagio Pinto whom Barnes sponsored, believed in and tutored. Likewise in honor of the new museum there was a special show of Salvatore's works at the Woodsmere Art Museum in the beautiful Chestnut Hill section of Philadelphia. A review in the Philadelphia Inquirer goes on to expand on the exhibit by also highlighting Philadelphia's Martino Family of seven artist along with the Pinto's works, all examples of the product of immigrant life in the 20's and 30's and their contribution to US Modernism in the Arts.

Space in this column does not permit me to do justice to the subject, but it underscores a common observation about the importance of heritage and calling attention to the role of Italian Americans in contributing to the arts in modern American life. I cite these examples among thousands, not just as a matter of pride, but to underscore the importance for the next generation in modeling, mentoring and contrasting against current media generalizations and stereotypes. Not a new experience, many Italian-Americans of that generation had to deal with some pretty difficult odds, and not only survived but went on to create art as well as live very productive lives. The bottom line for the next generation of Italian-Americana is that "your heritage and traditions are a rich source of creativity and a well spring of emotional and intellectual nourishment".

Even so, it is particularly unsettling when one observes a distancing from the Italian American experiences by our youth, whenever the latest wave of media exploitations occur. It is not something we talk about much, but consciously and unconsciously it does occur. One of our key roles as a foundation, especially among our community outreach activities such as the ITALIAN FAMILY FESTA, is to serve as model of a more realistic view of Italian-Americana, from the "grass roots" in action.

June also saw a very special scholarship award event, and focused on the importance of celebrating our role in fostering the next generation of artist, scientist and businesspeople who will take part in contributing to our nation's welfare. It is all interconnecting at the IAHF, our Festa is our "flag ship" that highlights to the greater community our celebration of heritage, supported by important and in depth looks at Italian American life through our many special events, including new this year, a mini Film Festa in August, from our language class at the IAHF. As we gear up for "Heritage month", I want to conclude with the observation of an educator, Mary Mullen who writes from the Barnes Collection, and truly sums up so many of our IAHF activities regarding learning about and understanding heritage, she notes "The object of education is to find oneself in the world, and to make one's self at home there." See you at the Festa! 🍷

EXILE, DIASPORA & IMMIGRATION: THE ABERESH OF SANTA CLARA COUNTY

The Italian American Heritage Foundation is very excited to make this exhibit available to you at our 32nd annual Italian Family Festa. The Arberesh or Albanian Italians, locally known as "Gheg, Gheg" (Gheg refers to the Albanian language.) were collectively part of an early wave of Italian immigrants to the Santa Clara Valley.

As part of that migration, these immigrants settled within the various Italian American communities in the valley. Being primarily from Southern Italy the Arberesh were well integrated into the local life of the Italian American community to the point that their language, "Gheg", was considered an Italian dialect. In reality it was part of the Albanian language spoken during the time of their exile, and diaspora, in 1460-70's when Christian Albania came under the domination of the Muslim Ottoman Empire.

Over the centuries the "Albanesi" settled in various parts of Southern Italy and gradually were integrated into local regional province life. Even so, in some areas they retained much of their language, traditions, dress and lore, including their Eastern Rite (Byzantine) Catholic practices. In Santa Clara County the vast majority of Arberesh immigrated from Piana degli Albanesi, in the vicinity of Palermo, Sicily.

Our exhibit highlights some of the history, lore and traditions of our local community. In preparing this exhibit the IAHF wishes to acknowledge Claire Meridier Alves in keeping her mother Ann Meridier's memory and vision of heritage alive. Massimo Chisessi who is presenting a lecture about the Arberesh in Santa Clara County at our Festa, Lucia Cementi and her husband Dave, who worked on the display board, and to.....for making this exhibit a reality. Grazie tutti!

ITALIAN FAMILY FESTA -- WINE TASTING GARDEN

Il Vino è la Vita! - Wine is Life! Wine Tasting Garden 2011

Relax, taste, and mingle in the Wine Tasting Garden located in the Piazza Piccola Italia. Savor some of the finest wines Santa Clara Valley has to offer while being enchanted in this serene piazza with arbors intertwined with olive and lemon trees, a burst of flowers, live music and a beautiful Italian fountain.

Featured Wineries

Guglielmo Winery, one of Northern California's wine pioneers, the Guglielmo family has been producing award-winning wines in the Santa Clara Valley since 1925, a winemaking tradition that has spanned three generations.

Fortino Winery was established in 1970 by Ernest and Marie Fortino. Ernest was drawn to the vineyard because it was highly reminiscent of his hometown, Calabria, Italy. Fortino Winery has now passed to the next generation who continues the family's passion of producing award winning wines.

Perrucci Family Vineyard began when brothers, Andy and Greg Perrucci, ventured into winemaking over ten years ago, with the help and support from four generations of family beside them. They have produced such fine wines as Sangiovese, Rosato, Mescolanza, Cabernet, Merlot, Syrah and Chardonnay.

FERRAGOSTO FILM FESTIVAL

I Cento Passi (One Hundred Steps) • August 6, 2012 • Marco Tullio Giordana • 2000

A young man's determination to put a stop to organized crime in his community puts him at odds with his family in this drama from Italy. As a child, Peppino Impastato was very close with his uncle Don Cesare (Pippo Montalbano), but was unaware that he was head of local Mafia operations. As he grew to adulthood, Peppino (Luigi Lo Cascio) became a political activist and a member of the Communist party, thanks to the influence of a close friend and leftist artist (Andrea Tidona). With his friends, Peppino starts an underground radio station to speak out against the corrupt influence of the Mafia and their control of local government, bravely leading public rallies calling for citizens to stand united against organized crime. However, Peppino's family still has strong ties with the mob, and as the young man and his comrades wage war against Tano and his men, Peppino's father (Luigi Maria Burruano) does everything he can to bring his wayward son back into the fold.

Io, Loro e Lara Me, Them and Lara • August 7, 2012 • Carlo Verdone • 2010

A comedy-drama paints the portrait of a dysfunctional family. Carlo, an Italian missionary, returns home from Africa, expecting to be welcomed by his family. Instead, he is ignored by all of them in the wake of their father's decision to marry a younger woman. Carlo's arrival is unsettled by Bea, his highly neurotic psychoanalyst sister. He is, however, also frequently dominated by his fast-talking, bankrupt brother Luigi and shunned by his smitten father, Alberto (affably depicted by Sergio Fiorentini). Alberto's melancholic, but beautiful stepdaughter, Lara, has also made matters worse for the three siblings, since she will inherit Alberto's wealth, not them.

Terra Ferma • Solid Land • August 13, 2012 • Emanuele Crialese • 2011

Riding the wave of Italian immigrant dramas that have been topical for years, writer-director Emanuele Crialese's Terraferma is an unremarkable story flying a passionate moral banner. The film contrasts Italy's traditional humanist values to inhuman new laws aimed at stemming illegal immigration and insists it's morally imperative to rebel against them. Its main commercial outlet will certainly be Italy, where the terrible clash between Italian law and "the law of the sea" will resonate the most. Much more straightforward than Crialese's poignant The Golden Door, which traced the sea journey of Italian immigrants to America a hundred years ago, Terraferma's realistic, downplayed storytelling is unlikely to increase the director's offshore following.

Linosa is a minor island south of Sicily, far from the Italian mainland, which the locals call "solid land," or terraferma. When a local fishing boat runs into a raft teeming with exhausted, dying Africans, wizened captain Ernesto (Mimmo Cuticchio) instinctively rescues six swimmers, while the Coast Guard arrives to save, and repatriate, the rest. The next day the authorities confiscate his boat because he failed to report the illegal immigrants that he and his crew took to the island.

Il Gioiellino • The Jewel • August 15, 2012 • Andrea Molaioli • 2011

The great scandal of Parmalat SpA Italy was Europe's Enron and still holds the dubious record of being the largest European bankruptcy with a debt of 14.3 billion dollars. Director Andrea Molaioli (The Girl by the Lake) focuses on the human side of this story and the subordination of individual interests to the demands of the family. The founder, Amanzio Rastelli, placed his closest relatives including his son and niece in key positions in the company despite the fact that they had little experience. What followed was gross corporate incompetence, desperate political maneuvering and fraud that ultimately left 100,000 investors with their money wiped out overnight. Molaioli has teamed up with Toni Servillo (Il Divo), one of Italy's top actors working today, as well as Gabriele Romagnoli and Ludovica Rampoldi, to dramatise this story of unscrupulous greed. The names of the real life characters have been changed as the drawn out legal appeals continue but bizarrely Parmalat, trading under a range of other names, is still going strong.

August is Ferragosto for all Italians in Italy. This year the IHAF will begin this celebration with an Italian Film Festival and our Annual Family Festa on August 25, 26, 2011. All films will be shown at the Italian American Heritage Foundation 425 N. 4th St. San Jose, Ca. at 6:30 pm.

Admission is $5.00 with a no host bar. For further information, contact Delia Schizzano at caradelia@yahoo.com

PHIL BARONE REMEMBERED

We were sadly reminded of our heritage, its linkages and threads when we at the IAHF received news of Phil Barone's death. For those of you who have been long time members, Phil was our president from 2001 to 2003. In addition to that he was a Festa chair, volunteer at a number of IAHF events, and advisory board member. Likewise, Phil along with Irving Sprugasci worked and managed our bar for many of our activities. Phil also volunteered with our St. Joseph Day activates and I do not recall him missing many, save last year when he was unable to attend due to illness. Likewise until very recently we were guaranteed to seeing Phil at the regional lunches, being brought to them by his longtime friend and fellow board member, Irving. Friendship, community involvement, and a pride of heritage were a major part of Phil's makeup, but there was so much more to the man as noted:

He is survived by his wife of 57 years Jan, and has two children, Jeff and Michelle and five grandchildren. Professionally Phil was an educator and spent 37 years in the field, especially with the Cambrian School District from instructor through the ranks to Superintendent of Schools. He also holds a Doctorate in education from UNC. He was also locally educated with long roots in the Santa Clara Valley from San Jose High School through San Jose State. He also received an IAHF Achievement Award in the field of education. At a moment of silence for Phil during our scholarship BBQ last week, Master of Ceremonies Frank Fiscali recalled the very same enthusiasm and energy when he started his career with the Cambrian Unified School District. A special gusto for life, and public service was a part of his character, a very rare resource these days. He was also a proud member of the Sons of Sicily, Elks Club and a child advocate. In addition Phil also served his country during the Korean War, serving in the Navy and was a hospital man second class assigned to the First Marine Division, participating in the Inchon Landing during that serious conflict.

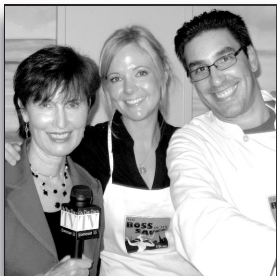

In a very real sense, "giving back to the community" was also a part of his makeup. And his work with the IAHF is a major part of our organizational history. It is also a statement about his character and his ongoing contribution to our common heritage. I recall once at a meeting, in a discussion about our Italian American heritage and issues around a family's multi-cultural heritage, saying (not a direct quote), "I don't care about what percentage of our heritage is Italian, I just want my family and community to understand and be proud of that one part of their unique family heritage!" It was that part of his vision that I believe captured his commitment to the IAHF. He really put his goals and value system out there in terms of his roll at the IAHF. In accordance with his family's wishes we are gratefully receiving scholarship donations in his memory, along with the Alzheimer Foundation.

It was very coincidental that I received the message of his passing as we were finalizing our work with the scholarship BBQ, and many of Phil's friends were at the event. In a sense we will be beginning next year's 2013 scholarship work with Phil in our hearts and minds both as a fitting tribute to a past president of the IAHF, as an educator, and a strong advocate of self-improvement. Should you wish to contribute to our IAHF Scholarship Fund in Phil's memory please send it to the IAHF Attention Phil Barone Scholarship Fund. We will also share the names with the family. What a wonderful legacy. Our thanks to Jan and the family for this consideration. Likewise, our support and condolences as a community goes out the Barone family and we honor and celebrate a life well lived. -- Ken Borelli 🍷

MADELINE MARIE SORDELLO GUGLIELMO REMEMBERED

The IAHF was saddened to hear of the passing of Madeline Marie Sordello Guglielmo, age 88, on July 15th, surrounded in her home by her adoring family. The memory of her spirit, strength, wisdom and love of life will live on through countless joyful memories.

Madeline grew up the Almaden Valley on the orchard ranch of her parents: the late Antone Sordello & Marina Facchino Sordello. She was raised in this 'Valley of Hearts Delight' alongside her brothers Raymond and the late Antone, and Richard. In Morgan Hill she attended the Morgan Hill Grammar school until 1939 when her father purchased a ranch in Willow Glen and built the family home upon it. Fostered along by her independent nature, Madeline helped maintain the property in Willow Glen as her family divided its time between their home in Morgan Hill and their home in Willow Glen.

Though many suitors charmed her, it wasn't until the return of her childhood acquaintance from his WWII post overseas, George W. Guglielmo, that marriage bells rang in July of 1946. Madeline and George met in Morgan Hill, where George would spend his summers working at his parent's winery. George became fast friends with Madeline's brother's, Antone and Ray, and from there a spark was ignited. Their marriage marked the beginning of a spirited & fiery union that lasted 51 years.

From this union came her three sons, George E., Eugene, and Gary. She raised them upon the winery grounds while working alongside her husband to help grow the family winery her in-laws began in Morgan Hill in 1925. Today, the Guglielmo winery—now running for a third generation by her three sons—has become a Morgan Hill institution, hosting weekly weddings, festivals, and celebrations for the community.

Throughout her life she continuously nurtured and entertained countless generations of individuals. Years of offering rich food and delectable wine, long reminiscent stories, and deep heartfelt laughter fill the memory banks of those she touched; she charmed and humored everyone with a simple wisdom that will live on; likewise her love of heritage, that is reflected in the so many activities that she and her family supported throughout the years. We at the IAHF are very appreciate of their on going support at our functions, especially at our Italian Family Festa. Her memory will also be acknowledge at this year's Festa even. As the matriarch of a loving family her legacy will live on in her family, their many community based activities and in our shared love of our Italian American Heritage.

Our condolences go out to her adoring family: her brother Raymond Sordello and sister-in-law Elaine Sordello; her sons George, Gene and Gary and their wives Janice, Laura & Ginger; her 11 grandchildren: Cristina, Alisa, Michelle, Jennifer, Gena, Angelia, Jonathan, Michael, Alexa, Gregorio, Giuliana; and her 5 great grandchildren: Isabella, Alexander, Lily, Kayla and Nicholas along with her many loving nieces, nephews, cousins and countless friends. 🍷
